

Ukraine's First Lady Olena Zelenska has issued an impassioned statement on the Russian invasion, condemning the "mass murder" of the country's civilians.

She focused on child casualties, mentioning the names of three children who had died in the bombardments.

She said Ukraine wanted peace but would defend its borders and its identity.

The whereabouts of Mrs Zelenska, 44, are unknown, and her husband President Volodymyr Zelensky says his family is a target for Russian forces.
